WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1885.

A Democrat has been found who declines an office. He should at once be secured by Barnum as the chief feature of his collection of curiosities.

The Democrats of Cadiz have elected their candidate for Mayor, a feat they only accomplished about once in fifteen years. The Republicans control the City Council as usual and will roll up a handsome majority next year when the election will have more significance.

The enemies of Senator McDonald have claimed that he turned out of the Federal offices in Virginia every man who was not subservient to his purposes, and yet the Norfolk Landmark says that a large majority of the clerks in the navy-yard at that place were there before Mr. McDonald became Senator and that among them is an ex-Congressman Dezendorf, a Union soldier.

The Louisville Courier Journal, which is no lover of the Democratic contemporary the New York World, accounts for its delay in the completion of the Bartholdi statue in the following sarcastic manner: "There seems to be a misunderstanding about the Bartholdi statue. People suppose it is a figure representing Liberty lightening the New York World. Approaching that it is hoped will be to enlighten the World, that it doesn't subscribe."

Force is gone on the face of the moon for a long time. The men who run the Republican party in California and the United States Senator have publicly denounced as a liar, a villain, a coward, a blackguard, an infamous slanderer, a politician and a coward. Does anybody know what Cutter is from Kentucky?—Louisville Herald.

Well, as General Logan has shortly before made the acquaintance of many of those men, great man as the field, he is not to be much disturbed by anything the rest of the Chicago ballot-box stuffers may say.

Secretary Manning's appointment clerk complains that certain false charges have been made against him, but nothing more than his unsolicited retirement will be required to clench his record, especially as a letter has just been published written over his own signature, in the hope of aiding a notorious criminal to escape justice.—New Haven Palladium.

The nomination of Mr. Hill for Governor will be a fitting one for the Democratic party to make. It will be a nomination that will be hailed with joy by the Democrats of the country, and it will be a nomination that will be ratified by the people of the State.—Albany Argus.

Mr. Beecher's boast of his new theology and prediction that "the next twenty-five years will witness a revolution in theology as well as in politics" may be charitably hoped that he is not a good illustration of his new creed, for he seems to have dropped out of the decalogue the old commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." During the late political campaign he gave a shock to all honorable men by publishing in speeches and in the press remarks made in confidence at a family table, and when the gentleman ventured to say that he must have misunderstood the remarks he violated anew both courtesy and decency by calling him a continental liar. He gave a fresh shock during the same campaign to the roughs, no less than to gentlemen, by affirming that a vast majority of the voters of New York had been guilty of adultery. He subsequently made a lame apology to his readers for the character of his speeches by saying "what he went in to win," his paying that, in an effort to win, honor and truth flew out of sight, and by attempts to excuse it. It is certain that by his reckless course in the campaign Mr. Beecher lost the respect and confidence of thousands of Christian men and can never regain them.

But the campaign is over, the great issues are settled, and the personal interests which found utterance in bitter words are forgotten. There is no longer an excuse for a bigoted Democrat or a dishonest Republican. But Mr. Beecher is unchanged. He still keeps his confidence. He paying no regard to the exact truth of his statements, and with no more care in his choice of words, than in the excitement of October. In his late speech at Atlanta, without the slightest provocation he uttered an insult to his countryman, Mr. Blaine. He said: "Mr. Blaine, ignorant of the thoroughness of the election law of New York, left the country in doubt for two weeks, hoping that his friends in some part of the State might tamper with the vote enough to save him to his party. He found it could not be done."

It is incredible that Mr. Beecher, blinded into such a libel. It is evident that his lax theology has not only blunted his sense of truth, but has stripped him of manhood. Twenty years ago he would have scorned to strike a fallen foe. Now he is brave enough to trample on a defeated candidate who, during his recent campaign, held temperance in perfect contempt, and was too brave to utter a gentleman to say an unkind word of him upon it. Now he is so enough to slander him in libel against the feeling to public, in statesman of the North who favor with a Southern friend. In flattery to the same audience he sold, "Hill is a good man, but he is settled in his theology and the Democrat utterly worthless for our purpose." Such conduct on the part of a leader of other days would be greatly shocked and pandered to the prejudices of his audience. The brave Puritans of the dawn of the Reformation would have cried, "Away with the Jesuit!" Our generation will deplore the shame of the Republican party in the field against the former champion of the colored race, who is now laughed with their opponents.

Mr. Beecher knows well that in a long public life he has been no stickler for Mr. Blaine's good honor. No statesman in our history, save Henry Clay, has had a warier field among his political enemies. He has given and taken heavy blows. He has been in the thickest of hot conflicts. His strong manliness, his courtly bearing, his generous nature, have won for him a place in the hearts of the people, and to bow to his will. When the Republicans declared in the recent election, though it did not convince, yet violence and fraud in Southern States, he submitted without a murmur, and has ever since worshiped in the next of his history which is to be his greatest gift to the American people. Mr. Beecher ought to be ashamed for the cowardly which strikes a defenseless man. He ought to be ashamed of the meanness which colors libels to injure leaders whom he distrusted. It is not Mr. Blaine or the Republican party that tampers with the ballot-box. Mr. Beecher knows that such acts have left the door of the new allies to his own company. He cries to end his disgrace. If he had protested to his allies in the cause against the disturbances of the South, he would have shown a little of the old heroism and love of truth born of his Covenant theology. He has had thought of his new friends, Morgan and Gorham, convicted of stuffing the ballot-boxes by the dozen, he might have kept a discreet silence. He had remembered the gentle words in New York City by Boss Tweed in 1865, to which Mr. S. J. Tilden was a party, by which the control vote of New York was given to Mr. Seymour. He might have recalled some better motive to Mr. Blaine, in forwarding, Governor Hill, to the return from the Empire State. Of it he had read the record of Mr. Hewitt, the Hoffman, promoted to high office in Washington for his skillful management of ballot-boxes in Baltimore. He might have shown proof more by avoiding any allusion to tampering with the ballot.

The whole speech is an ignoble one, an apparent attempt to gain at the South the popularity lost to it in the North. It is a national misfortune that a great preacher should lose his spiritual power by descending the theology of his better years. It is an equal misfortune that an heroic champion of reform and an anti-slavery leader, when it comes to be true to confession, should be hidden by cowardly flows at the feeble statesmanship by means libelous the Republican party, from which he has spoken. If the loss of manhood is due to his theology, few will care to calculate the free which yields such fruit.

Mr Pearson's Reappointment

COMMENTS ON THE PRESIDENT'S REASONS FOR CONTINUING HIM IN OFFICE

[Telegraph to the Press.]

WASHINGTON, April 5. Much interest is taken here to day in the statement given by the President in the Washington Sunday Herald of the reasons for his appointment of Postmaster Pearson. They are reported on the authority of a Cabinet Minister, quoted by the Herald to be "one of the President's most constitutional advisers." The statement is reported in the President's own words. One of the reasons given is the following:

"Some of the Republican leaders, particularly Senator Sherman, have shown honor to be charged because he refused in the best of the civil service to permit the Post Office to be made a political machine."

There are three points notable in this announcement of the President. First, that it is a dishonorable discharge for a Federal office holder not to resign his place at the expiration of his four years' term. Secondly, that the Republican leaders made in the heat of the canvass certain demands of Mr Pearson, and, thirdly, that he refused to comply with those demands.

A well-informed observer of political movements, who had much knowledge of the campaign, was asked if he knew of any such demands made of Mr Pearson in the heat of the canvass, which he refused to comply, and he replied:

"Nothing of the sort happened, and it is amazing that the President should descend from his position to make in his own deliberately chosen words such an unfounded charge. The only request that was made of Mr. Pearson was that he should give his employes—clerks and letter carriers—an opportunity to vote and he pretended that he would do so. Whether he did or not I do not know. But it can hardly be that the President means that he appointed Mr. Pearson because he is aware that the Postmaster put obstacles in the way of their voting."

"How do you account for the President's charge?"

"Mr. Pearson betrayed the Blaine cause, or doing which there has been heretofore some reason to suspect him and which the President's formal announcement now makes reasonably apparent. He is not rewarding him for not improperly helping the Blaine ticket, but is rewarding him for assisting in some way, proper or improper, the Cleveland ticket. Whatever doubts there may have been hitherto in Republican minds about Pearson's treachery to Blaine must disappear before the President's statement. Certainly they will unless he clearly proves the particulars of his charge, that demands were made by the Republicans of Pearson which he refused to comply with. Otherwise the appointment, instead of being a high civil service appointment, is the fulfilment of a mere vulgar bargain, Mr Pearson's share in which is (1) the betrayal of Blaine last fall and (2) the support by Pearson, with the Times, the Post, Curtis, Beecher Company, of the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York next fall. That is about the size of this great moral appointment, over which the unctious Cleveland and Manning are smacking their lips while the great unwashed Democracy are gnashing their teeth."

The President desires Judge Chesley to retain his position as Solicitor of Internal Revenue until the new Commissioner can get along without him, which he is expected to make room for a friend of Senator Gorman. The friends of Judge Chesley think it doubtful if he consents to play the schoolmaster for a few weeks simply to accom no into the Administration. If, as Commissioner Miller has said, Judge Chesley's services are now indispensable, there is every reason why he should be permanently retained.

PASSING AWAY.

A Day of Terrible Suspense.

General Grant Suffers a Hemorrhage.

He Loses Two Ounces of Blood.

Believed to be Dying Yesterday.

Still Alive at Last Report.

The Household Alarmed.

NEW YORK, April 7.—4 A. M. Drs. Shrady and Sands were hastily summoned to Gen. Grant's residence at 9.15 this morning. Gen. Badeau, Senator Chaffee and Dr. Newman were sent for at the same time. The indications are bad.

1 P. M. A carriage was sent after Dr. Sands in great haste. This is the first time Dr. Sands has been sent for, and the supposition is that General Grant is choking and that Dr. Sands has been called to perform tracheotomy.

1.12 A. M. Dr. Sands has just arrived at Grant's house with a case of instruments. Senator Chaffee, U. S. Grant, Jr., and Gen. Badeau have also arrived in a great hurry.

Arrival of the Doctors.

About 3.45 this morning a messenger boy dashed hurriedly down the steps of Gen. Grant's house and rushed toward the telegraph office on Madison avenue, near 66th street. He had held in his hand two notes, one addressed to Dr. H. Sands and the other to Dr. George F. Shrady. A few minutes after another messenger issued from the Grant residence bearing notes for Senator Chaffee, Gen. Badeau and Parson Newman. Gen. Badeau was first to arrive. He was admitted, and at once proceeded to Gen. Grant's room. A horse at full gallop dragged the coupe of Dr. Shrady up to the door at 4 A. M., and a few minutes later Dr. Sands arrived, bearing a case of instruments, although it was afterwards learned that no surgical operation was necessary. U. S. Grant, Jr., and Senator Chaffee reached the house about five minutes past five.

The General has a Hemorrhage.

Dr. Sands was the first to emerge, and he strolled listlessly toward Fifth avenue. In answer to inquiries he said: "Wait for the bulletin." About 5.45 the bulletin was issued. Dr. Shrady, in response to a question, said Dr. Douglas was quietly sitting by Gen. Grant, when the latter suddenly had a slight hemorrhage from the throat. Dr. Douglas took such measures as were necessary, and sent for Drs. Sands and Shrady. Gen. Grant said: "There is no use sending for the other doctors, you are enough." General Grant spit about two ounces of blood and then wiping the traces from his face with his hand appeared calm and collected.

The following note was dispatched to each of the physicians, Sands and Shrady: "Dr Doug[illegible] wants you immediately. (Signed) FRED D. GRANT."

Morning Bulletin.

NEW YORK, April 7—5.45 A. M. General Grant slept well until 1 A. M., when he awoke and took his refreshment. Immediately afterwards a paroxysm of coughing, followed by a slight hemorrhage, which ceased spontaneously in a few minutes. Drs. Sands and Shrady were sent for and found the General in quiet as usual, having had no renewal of the hemorrhage.

J. M. DOUGLAS, M. D.
GEO. F. SHRADY, M. D.

Second Bulletin.

6 A. M.—General Grant had a slight hemorrhage about 4 o'clock, and Dr. Douglas, who was on the night watch, became slightly alarmed and called the family, and Drs. Sands and Shrady were sent for. When the physicians arrived the bleeding was under control. No immediate recurrence of the hemorrhage is anticipated. General Grant has been given an injection of morphine and is now sleeping.

Sleeping at 7 O'clock.

Senator Chaffee left the house at 6.15. He said: "He had an injection of morphia at 4 A. M., and I think he will live through the day. He lost a teacup full of blood. He was so much collected that he directed the attending nurse to hold the vessel so that no blood would reach the floor. Dr. Newman arrived about 5.45 A. M. Dr. Shrady at seven o'clock said that General Grant was sleeping and that he was doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances. He also stated that Dr. Douglas was taking much needed rest."

Third Bulletin.

8.30 A. M.—General Grant is quietly sleeping. The hemorrhage remains arrested. It has made no marked impression on the pulse.

J. M. DOUGLAS, M. D.
GEO. F. SHRADY, M. D.

Fourth Bulletin.

9.0 A. M.—General Grant has just awaked. His pulse is that same, and there has been no return of the hemorrhage.

Fifth Bulletin.

11 A. M.—General Grant's condition remains unchanged. He has taken his food without pain, his pulse is still steady and reasonably slow, there is no more hemorrhage, his mind is clear, he replies to questions and gives evidence of the general unchanged firmness which has characterized him during the entire sickness.

GEO. F. SHRADY, M. D.

May Survive the Day.

The hemorrhage this morning left General Grant's throat was arrested and it contained blood. The General seems not at all alarmed and his family is not very greatly frightened. The hemorrhage was due somewhat to the increase of the disease, and was facilitated by momentary coughing. The probabilities are that he may survive the day.

Steadily Sinking.

At 11.45 the Press in Minutes called at General Grant's house. He did not see the General. At 12.15 it was said that the General was steadily sinking. Ex-Senator Chaffee returned to the house about one o'clock.

May Die at Any Moment.

At the time of the hemorrhage General Grant was perfectly conscious and knew well what was going on about him. The doctors say another hemorrhage is liable to occur at any moment, but the results they decline to prognosticate. His death may occur at any moment. The General prepared himself to die last Thursday.

Sixth Bulletin—9 P. M.

General Grant has been sleeping quietly since the last record. He has just awakened and taken food and stimulant. The pulse is 76, volume full, temperature 101. There has been no recurrence of the hemorrhage.

Considerably Weaker.

Drs. Barker, Douglas, Shrady and Sands were in consultation between 2 and 3 o'clock. When Dr. Barker left the house he said the General was considerably weaker and took his food under protest. He was liable at any moment to have a recurrence of the hemorrhage. Dr. Shrady arrived at General Grant's house at 6.15. He had with him many instruments which were brought as a prevention against bleeding in the night.

The End is Near.

At 7 P. M. Dr. Douglas said the end was near. He gave the impression that it might be possible to prolong life till morning, but the effort to protract life by artificial means was hardly desirable and beside that the General wished to die. He was tired and weary and knew the inevitable was not far away. At 9 P. M. Dr. Shrady said he was prepared for all emergencies. It should not be supposed that Dr. Sands had come to perform an operation. If any hemorrhage took place Dr. Shrady was quite prepared to stop it.

He Sends for Dr. Newman—Peacefully Awaiting the Final Summons.

Dr. Newman, at the request of General Grant, was sent for at 3 P. M. The clergyman remained with him till nearly 7. The sick man seemed to have sent for the minister to talk. The change, he felt, was near. Dr. Newman had spoken of the friendly feeling of the people at large and the great number of friends the General had. "And I have a great many on the other side, too," said the General. "Yes, that is true, and they are waiting for you, General, they are waiting for you." "Oh, yes, and I wish they would come," replied General Grant; and Dr. Newman said that never in his life did he see such an expression of peaceful satisfaction as that on the General's face as he uttered these words.

Bulletin, 10.30 P. M.

"General Grant continues in a comfortable condition. He has slept well and his pulse is 84. There is no appearance of hemorrhage in his expectoration. He has just taken nourishment.

(Signed) J. H. DOUGLAS, M. D.
GEO. F. SHRADY, M. D."

Latest Bulletin—9 Sleeping Quietly.

NEW YORK, April 8—1.30 A. M. Gen. Grant is sleeping very quietly at this moment, having been restless since the last bulletin from an accumulation of mucus in the throat. His pulse is 84 and improved in volume, respiration 14. He has taken nourishment regularly.

MRS GARFIELD

She is Deeply Hurt by the Cruel News Paper Hoax About Her Intended Marriage.

NEW YORK, April 7. To-morrow the Albany will say that Candon O. Rockwell, brother-in-law of Mrs Garfield, mentioned in a recent letter to her the newspaper stories about her reported intention to marry again, and received in reply a letter written on the 6th of April, from which was the responsibility of making the following extract. "This cruel rumor, which seems to have been afloat two or three months, did not reach me until three days ago. Nothing that has ever been said about me has so hurt and offended me as this, and the deepest humiliation of it is that so many are ready to believe it. To me it seems just as much an insult to be asked whether it is true as it would be were the dear General still here. That any one can think me capable of being false to his memory seems like being regarded as a criminal. A dignified denial by my friends, I suppose, can do no harm, still it hurts one to feel that any denial is needed."

H., says: "I will simply say that your Vegetable Compound is all you recommend it to be. It has done me Words of Good." Another lady writes from Ottawa as follows: "I have just to-day bought the seventh bottle of your Vegetable Compound, have used two boxes of Pills and several packages of your Sanative Wash, and think it but right to tell you how much good I derived from your medicines. They are a regular God-send." All the pains and aches have almost disappeared, my stomach is much stronger too, and I feel myself improved every way." d&w1w apr

EXPENSIVE USE OF COAL. The amount of coal burned every month by the locomotives of the Maine Central Railroad which obtain their supply here is such as would seem very large to one not acquainted with the railroad business. There are twenty-five engines on the Maine Central which "coal up" in Bangor. Those running to Portland use four tons per day while those on the short distance runs, as between this city and Old Town, use but one ton. The average is about two tons per day for each locomotive, making in all about fifty ton per day and 1,500 tons per month. This coal all comes by vessels from Baltimore and Philadelphia and the work of handling it in this city gives employment to quite a large number of men.

ACCIDENT ON THE BANGOR & PISCATAQUIS. Yesterday morning as the down freight on the Bangor & Piscataquis R. R. was approaching the Bunker Brook trestle above Blanchard a freight car left the track and when the trucks under the forward end struck the sleepers on the trestle it pushed them ahead leaving an open space between the rails through which the trucks dropped and the forward end of the car fell on to the track. The car contained nine hogs belonging to Mr. Eben Hussell, one of which was killed and some of the others slightly injured. The man who was with the horses jumped from the car. It took nearly all day to clear the track, and the passenger train was four hours late into this city last night. The freight train that met with the accident arrived in Oldtown about eleven o'clock last night.

OLD TOWN.

Last Monday just as the last of night had settled down upon the Square at Old Town large crowd of citizens were seen hurrying to the City Hall to hear the Bradley Ship Building Company's band which was stationed on the balcony, pour out fifty of its excellent brass and reed pieces. It was not long before the crowd had assembled in the hall. It was evident that he who had mastered the secrets and mysteries of the I. O. O. F. was calling to order after some last principle of physics by which more than one body can occupy the same space at the same time. Finally overcoming all difficulties, we arrived at Bradley, and word was taken up the important company of Odd Fellows, who entertained us with games and plays, after which we adjourned to tables bountifully and tastefully laden with good things. I have often heard them say that the way to win a man is through his stomach, but it is now to my pleasure to see this fully learned. I looked upon the smiling faces of the brothers from Old Town as they came from the table. Pipes were on their lips, and it was evident their hearts had been touched. After a speech by Bro. H. H. Bryant, Mr. Gould and Prof. Hall, and Commander Bradley, the company left with a good cheer for home, and the occasion in enjoyable one, and did Bradley good indeed, it parted in peace.

EASTER SERVICES AT ORONO.

Observance of Easter by all the Church services. Concert at the Methodist Church in the Evening.

Our correspondent (J. J. A.) writes: The services in our churches on Easter Sunday were always very interesting and last Sunday proved no exception, as all the churches were well attended at the morning services. In the evening Vespers were held in the Catholic church, and all the Protestant churches gave Easter concerts. I had the pleasure of attending the concert in the Methodist church, which was largely attended by ladies and gentlemen and Sabbath School children. The church was fragrant with potted plants and flowers. There were several calla lilies, all of which were very beautiful. The exercises were as follows: Organ voluntary, Mrs. F. N. Mayo; opening chorus, by the school, "Past is the Night"; responsive reading, Superintendent and School; prayer, by Rev. P. J. Robinson; song, "Son the Grace of Jesus," by school, during which Misses Eva Bither and Annie Douglass sang a duett very finely; Doxology, by the Congregation; recitation, by little misses Abbot and McPhetres, responsive reading, singing, "Song of the Angels," by a class of girls; recitation, "You must be born again," by Harry Kimball; recitation, by Miss Martha Spencer; reading, by Miss Howland; responsive reading; song, by Misses Griffin and Grant; recitation, by Miss Annie Douglass; singing, "Joy to the world," by the congregation; reading, "Bring Flowers," by Miss Merrill; singing, of an Easter song, by the school; recitation, by five young misses; song, by the School; Miss Grace Vinal read in a very pleasing manner a selection entitled "Easter Morning"; song, "Easter Day," by a class of seven young misses—Miss Annie Douglass playing the accompaniment; hymn, Coronation, by the congregation; responsive reading, "Remember now thy Creator," by Rev. P. J. Robinson and School; song, by the School; benediction, by the Pastor—previous to which he informed the audience that an address on temperance, would be delivered in this church next Sunday evening. A social hour was extended to all to be present. Miss Ella Leonard at the smaller organ, Miss Hattie Leonard at the organ, and Geo. W. Leonard led the singing. All the exercises were pleasing and gave much pleasure to those who were present.

Agricultural.

Silos and Ensilage.

The West Winthrop Farmers' Club held a meeting Saturday evening, March 13th, for the special purpose of considering the subject of silo and ensilage as a means of preserving green fodder as food for farm stock. W. H. Keith, Esq., was selected chairman for the evening, who made some remarks upon taking the chair in regard to the desire of the farmers to accept any change demanded by the progressive sentiment of the times, if it could be shown to be for their interest to do so, and before adopting any radical change in the manner of curing fodder or in feeding it to animals, of submitting it to the closest investigation as has been done by them regarding other important matters touching their business. As the best possible means to accomplish what was desired, the club had been able to secure the presence of Hon. A. Gilbert, who has had opportunities to know if there is merit or value in the matter before the club and who will give the benefit of his knowledge. Mr. Gilbert, on being introduced, spoke nearly two hours without notes, confining himself closely to the subject. I am able to give only an outline of his lecture.

He spoke of the great value which comes all from the experience of some who are the pioneers in the introduction of new systems and methods in agriculture and whatsoever pertains to the calling, and also the fact that much superficial talk usually attends the introduction of new ideas among farmers. From very careful study and thorough investigation, most men may gain as much knowledge of a theory or system as though he had practical experience. He was present without written notes or notes, and would talk it over familiarly. That silos will preserve fodder there need be no question; we all must be more skeptical as that, but the fact is established. Silos preserve fodder by excluding the air from the mass. Weight or pressing is done to shut out all the air possible, as air is the destructive element and must be kept out. Air operates quickly and powerfully upon green vegetable matter, causing fermentation, which is to circulate freely, and destruction follows, but when excluded, what little there is will do no harm. The methods and further destruction ceases.

A change that takes place in the process of decomposition, is only a partial one, the extent of which is determined by the amount of air allowed to remain. Back will of ensilage, that is settled and may be taken for a fact, but I have never seen the avaricious of cattle for food which many who are the enthusiastic advocates of ensilage claim to be the case. I still cattle eat it well and appear to relish it. Silage is a good fodder if made good material and well preserved, but nutritious food. Silos should be made with perpendicular sides or walls, and smooth inside. It is more convenient when feed at some depth below the standing surface of the cattle to be fed from it. Inconvenience of location destroys the use of silos. Who wants a silo? This question is well settled today as to whether it will be, it can only be practically where corn fodder is raised largely. Very large amounts of corn fodder cannot be well cured and cared for without housing it from the weather, and our common barns are not sufficient. Silos are better adapted for the south and west than for the North. We want our fodder housed, and the farmer who wants to raise corn fodder instead of clover and timothy, should stick to it for hay to feed to his cows and other cattle? Do we want to change in this respect? As an exclusive crop, the corn crop is the cheapest fodder crop except the corn with the grain taken off, and the cost more than grass fodder. The corn is a good seed to those who have not a good grass soil. On light, sandy lands corn can do better with corn and silage than with grass and hay, farmers raising corn in large areas can be benefited by silos.

Ensilage is an unnatural food and should be fed to stock exclusively, only a part only. If fed entirely alone, it will sooner or later work injury to the animal; but ration may never do this, so which can not tell. Does it affect the milk of animals? Yes, it renovates and purifies it, and such milk is discarded by condensing milk works everywhere. It is safe to be fed it in some measure.

Comparatively speaking, ensilage is a profitable fodder, notwithstanding its good fodder, and cattle and sheep to food it; it is a good substitute for roots all kinds of farm stock.

The average weight of carcass of American cattle has been increased by over thirty-three per cent of the weight of fifty years ago, while the average yield of milk increased still more.

well-rotted manure is used the potato cannot be fertilized too heavily. Potatoes require the richest soil on the farm, and a good crop cannot be reasonably be expected unless, beside this, the ground is heavily fertilized.

Currants and gooseberries should be pruned every season to be productive and to be large fruit. When pruning, bear in mind that the former will produce fruit on the one-year-old wood, while with the latter the wood is two years old before bearing. Pruned in tree form they produce larger and finer fruit.

No Reason Why of Advertising.

Why son, there's nothing on earth so mysteriously funny as a newspaper advertisement. The prime, first, last and all the time, object of an advertisement is to draw custom. It is not, was not, and never will be designed for any other human purpose. So the merchant waits till the busy season comes, and his store is so full of custom he can't get his hat off, and then he rushes to the newspapers and puts in his advertisement. When the dull season gets along, and there is no trade, and he wants to sell goods so bad he can't pay his rent, he takes out his advertisement. That is, some of them do, but occasionally a level-headed merchant puts in a bigger one and scoops all the business, while his neighbors are making mortgages to pay the gas bill.

There are times when you couldn't stop people from buying every thing in the store if you planted a cannon behind the door, and that's the time the advertisement is sent out on its holy mission. It makes light work for the advertisement, for it chalks the off the sidewalk could do all that was needed and have a half holiday six days in the week; but who wants to favor an advertisement. They are built to do hard work, and should be sent out in the dull days when a customer has to be knocked down with hard facts, and kicked insensible with bankrupt reductions and dragged in with irresistible slaughter of prices before he will spend a cent.

That's the end and aim of an advertisement, my son, and if you ever open a store don't try to get them to come when they are already sticking out of the windows, but give them your advertisement right between the eyes in the dull season, and you will wax rich and own a fast horse, and perhaps be able to smoke a good cigar once or twice a year. Write this down where you will fall over it every day. The time to draw business is when you want business, and not when you have more business than you can attend to already.—Bridgeport Post.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a sailing ship around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers developed his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the leg, and finally horrible ulcers of the sore, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until, the case, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, he views that, in this belief, there is no doubt of its most equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally, either at his monument (Grant Hotel, Long Branch) or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 7th and 8th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information

Persons leaving their addresses at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of the residence.

Collections are made morning, noon and evening in section for important mails.

Residents of the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 7 to 9 A. M. and from 5 to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

METAL POISON.

I am a copper-smith by trade, and during a series of years my arms (long bare when at work) have absorbed a whole full amount of metal poison. Having a rheumatic tendency from my youth, the small particles of copper could not be absorbed by the nerves, and by this process the poison was conveyed into my blood till my whole system became affected. I was troubled with the old remedies of mercury and iodide potassium, which only followed, for a time, to drive the poison to my bones, my joints were all swollen, and I lost the use of my arms and legs, and became so helpless as an infant.

My suffering became so intense that it was impossible for me to rest. The doctors advised me to go to the city hospital for its utmost. This I could not do. A friend, who has proved a friend indeed, urged me to try Swift's Specific. I felt a feeling it would cure me. Others discouraged me, but I secured a few bottles, and have now taken two dozen bottles. The first effect I noticed was to bring the poison to the surface, and I broke out all over in running sores. This soon disappeared and my skin cleared up. My bones, which had become twice their natural size, have resumed their natural size, and are supple as of yore. My arms and hands are all right again and can use them with ease. The rheumatic discomforts in all parts of the body save two or three in my wrists, which are healing rapidly. I am week from long confinement, but I have the use of all my limbs. MALARIAL POISON.

The death in Southwest Georgia last spring drew up the wells, and we were compelled to use water from the swamps on the plantation. The result was that I soon were troubled with chills and fever. I carried with me several bottles of Swift's Specific, and as long as I took it I had perfect health. As soon as I ceased taking it, the fever came, was afflicted with chills. When I resumed its use, I was all right again. We have used it in our family as an antidote for malarial poison for two or three years, and have never known it to fail in a single instance.
